Answer

This thought provoking letter was emailed anonymously

An Elder is thoughtful, strong and also compassionate. An Elder condemns all kinds of violence and abuse, not just those kinds that it is convenient for them to condemn. An Elder stands up for the weak and speaks truth to power.

An Elder is not perfect, but neither is he or she a hypocrite. An Elder recognizes that his or her strength comes from a long line of ancestors and their accumulated wisdom. An Elder is always learning.

An Elder is somebody you can expect a "fair go" from. An Elder will not attack you when you least expect it. Instead, an Elder will stand up for you when you most need it.

An Elder will definitely not take responsibility for you, but will encourage you to take responsibility for yourself and stand alongside you while you try.

An Elder knows that true dignity comes from within, and that nobody can make you feel inferior without your consent. An Elder is slow to judge, but fierce in his or her defense of the oppressed.

An Elder understands that our history of colonization has left many of us hurting and afraid. An Elder will not manipulate our hurt and fear, but will help us to see that we can overcome it together.

An Elder has a mission for a better and more peaceful community. An Elder lives in such a s way to make this community happen.

Elders do not hit women or children. Elders do not rape men, women or children. Elders do not tolerate the abuse of any man, woman or child in their community. EVER.

Are you an Elder? Or are you just old?

Métis rights and the decimation of Saskatchewan's northern forests - Star Phoenix, June 2017

In regard to Métis people's concerns regarding current clear cut forestry activities in Northern Saskatchewan, there are grave concerns.

The Government of Saskatchewan is allegedly signing agreements with northern municipal mayors; for example, the Northwest Community Forestry Agreement, which Carrier Forest Products is reputedly using for current clear cutting activities, with a plan to clear cut 790,000 more hectares of boreal forest in northwest Saskatchewan on historical Métis lands.

What is wrong with these forestry activities? The government has a duty to consult with the Métis people, who are represented through the Métis Regional Council, (exclusively made up of the MNS Regional Representative and Region Local Presidents). No other committee has the authority to sign agreements involving renewable or non-renewable resources on these lands. So, provincial government and northern municipality mayors have no right to approve activities and/or sign agreements with the Government of Saskatchewan.

So, what communities signed the Northwest Community Forestry Agreement, how much money is involved, who is being paid, and who is accountable for the damage being done to Metis homelands? Currently, these questions remain a mystery to any Métis person seeking answers.

Until this situation is resolved with a fully functioning legit MNS MNLA, the Saskatchewan government is in contravention of Métis rights.

In the meantime, all the clear cutting and the decimation of the Métis homeland, its traditional lands in Northern Saskatchewan, needs to cease.

Mervin Bouvier, Ile a La Crosse

Saskatchewan seatbelt law turns 40 – thousands of lives saved!
It's as easy as 1, 2, 3 – click It!

The year was 1977. The Toronto Blue Jays played their first game. Elvis Presley died. "Star Wars" introduced us to Luke, Leia and Darth Vader. And a new law came into effect that would eventually save thousands of lives on Saskatchewan roads.

Saskatchewan was the third province in Canada to mandate seatbelts, following Ontario and Quebec that introduced the law the year before.

"Seatbelt legislation has come a long way over the last 40 years," said Earl Cameron, Executive Vice-President of the Auto Fund. "When initially introduced, only drivers, front-seat passengers and children under 16 years of age were required to wear them. Today, it includes everyone in the vehicle, and there are additional child safety seat requirements for children under the age of seven."

SGI QuickFacts
Occupant restraints
SGI Take care out there.

- 7% of vehicle occupants don't wear a seatbelt - but account for 27% of all vehicle occupant deaths
- Single vehicle rollovers are the most common type of fatality for unbuckled occupants - because occupant is ejected.
- If ejected from a vehicle while not wearing a seatbelt, there's a 70% chance of being killed.
- One person not wearing a seatbelt in a vehicle puts all occupants at risk.

Manufacturers weren't even required to install seatbelts in vehicles until 1971. At that time, only passengers in the front seat had to wear them. Over time, it became illegal to wear the shoulder strap behind you or under your arm. Later, there would be requirements for child safety seats and booster seats. (See attached media backgrounder for a timeline.)

As seatbelt use became more prevalent, thousands of lives were saved. But it did take some time. In 1986, (the earliest year for which SGI has data) there were 111 vehicle occupants killed in Saskatchewan collisions who weren't wearing a seatbelt (or not buckled in properly) and 2,699 were injured for the same reason. These numbers represented 61 per cent of all deaths and 35 per cent of injuries among vehicle occupants in 1986.

By 2016, that number had dropped to 25 deaths and 155 injuries. In 27 per cent of vehicle occupant fatalities and three per cent of injuries in Saskatchewan last year, the person killed either wasn't wearing a seatbelt or wasn't buckled up properly.
